2010 was a 10!!!!

"The Best Ever" is the goal and we surpassed it. The Summer of 2010 was great on so many levels: the weather, the campers, the staff, the friends, the fun and the things we did.

It started off chilly (in the first few days we had temperatures in the upper 40s) but then we never looked back. Hardly any rain and temps mostly in the upper 80s and 90s.

Laughter, music, rhythm; Camp Towanda hits its stride when everyone arrived. From the youngest Debs & Jets to the Dorm, Club and LITs. Activities, energy, enthusiasm and sportsmanship. Our spirit, our respect, our appreciation of what we have and what we do with it is what we are about.

It started with the opening staff welcome show and bonfire, Unique Entertainment, The Towanda Open, make your own banana splits and Simon Sez with Steve Max (who acknowledged our level of respect). The canoe trips, the goat alert alarm, scavenger hunt, campapalooza, GHOST, 5 year club trip to the Binghamton Mets, talent show, carnival night, the 5th of July fireworks, Matt the magician, Ron Dagan and the winter birthday party. All this was just the first week, along with regular activities, intercamp games and tournaments.

Action continued as the heat cranked up. Our new awesome water slide was the perfect addition for our all-camp general swims.

Plays, canoe trips, Under The Lights, Friday Nite Flix and Porch Breakfast. Did anyone ever mention an 8:15, 8:30 or 8:45 reveille? As the heat continued no one minded those late reveilles, ice pops, fruit calls and water breaks!

MISter Towanda, Electionality, MLB All-Star Game on the big screen, Dave Matthews in concert, square dancing, and the black & white disco, trip day, Venzie pizza party, bowling and Girls' Sing!

The fun continued with an all-star basketball game, casino night, gold rush, backwards day and the senior trips. Pudding wrestling, gem car races and a day of silly names.

Other memories include apple pie, bubble wrap Guinness to the cha cha slide, how about the urinal goals?, Chaikin & Charlie's Chicken Party, Club yarmulkes, orange day, the ping-pong tables, lake bbq's and when was free play Ovah!!

Remember the chocolate dipped strawberries?, Stephanie's garden & the farm's blueberries via limo, karaoke, Klasner's "anywho", coed ghost with the opposite gender sibling rule when anything goes (but only on a Monday), bag lunches, Everyone's favorite dessert of cookies with ice cream as well as plenty of healthy choices!

And there was Horse Racing, Dutch Auction, Airbands, The Wayne County Fair, Lazy Day and The Staff Show's Beatles come to Towanda.

Oh, don't forget the great psych-outs and fake outs (how about the Club's Car Fakeout? Awesome!!) Oh yeah...and the great dinosaur dig!

The summer was also highlighted with Chef Jonesy's 13th year Bro-Mitzvah (only at Towanda), Mitch's backwards shot and Tepper's called in the park grand slam, the sermons by the Cohen girls and the mother/daughter team of Russnows, Minute to Win it, Counselor Hunt and the Dorm's pre-reveille jogs!

The memories of the summer of 2010 are great and will carry us through the winter, until we return as a family when Camp will be Heaven in 2011!

You can still purchase a VisionWalk T-shirt for the Spring, 2011 VisionWalk in Central Park, NYC.

Parlor Meetings

This Fall Mitch & Stephanie are meeting with interested families as several of our local families graciously host get-togethers. We've been to Potomac, Maryland & Atlanta, Georgia. We are heading soon to Boca Raton, Florida; Boston; Upstate, NY, Manhattan, Chicago, Philadelphia and a return to Madrid! Thanks so much for the wonderful hospitality.

ALUMNI BBQ

The first in-season Alumni BBQ Day was held on Sunday July 25. And despite it being the only real rainy day of the summer, it was terrific!

Being able to relax and not mesh with the Visiting Day crowd was considered a huge success by all involved. It was the Alum's Day!

It was a treat for many to return to their summer home and take in the sights, sounds and the smells. Alumni realize that although they leave camp, they actually always take a part of Towanda with them (and leave a bit here). It was a great, emotional and proud day.

Those alums who couldn't make it, try next summer on Sunday July 24, 2011. Also, keep in mind we are heading to our 90th year in 2012 (Those plans will be announce over the winter).

All alumni visiting is restricted to those age 21 or older. Those that are able to contribute to Olympics with Judge and referee credentials are invited to inquire about availability.

FLY ON THE WALL

Last summer, one of our camp parents, Jill Rosenthal, had the opportunity to help us out and work at camp for a few weeks. It was an interesting opportunity to see camp from a different perspective and for her to share that insight. With Jill's permission, we have included her assessment of her time at camp:

Dear Mitch,

I want to thank you for the opportunity to work at Camp this past summer. Quite frankly I was a bit nervous about what I was going to see. As you know my children have been going to Camp Towanda for seven and five years and they absolutely love it. I have friends who work at other camps and they have told me nightmare stories about what really goes on "behind the scenes". My concern was that I would see what camp was really like and regardless of how my children felt I would come away with a negative feeling about camp. I can tell you whole heartedly that in fact, eight summers ago I made a decision to send my children to Camp Towanda and my decision has been confirmed 100%. What I learned in my brief time up at Camp was that absolutely every decision made by you and Stephanie, the counselors or the staff was always based on making the campers happy and keeping them safe. There was nothing I saw or experienced that I as a parent was not comfortable with.

I read all the emails you sent last summer and the summers before which described what was happening at camp. Unfortunately no amount of emails or letters (including this one) can truly describe the Camp Towanda experience. Everywhere you turn there are smiling, happy, laughing, cheering children. On the rare occasion where a camper might be upset about something the staff are all over it making sure that whatever the issue might be it is taken care of and that everyone is safe and happy. What I was most impressed with is how the senior staff and especially you and Stephanie knew about every issue that arose. It's unrealistic for anyone to believe that with over 400 kids at camp for 7 weeks issues and problems do not arise. It is how these issues are dealt with that is important. How you, as the Camp Director, can know about every issue and follow up to make sure it is resolved is the truly impressive part.

As I walked around camp the feeling of joy the campers were exuding was palpable. Whether running, cheering and laughing on the ball field, practicing for sing or just plain walking from one activity to the other, I just couldn't help think that it was at that very moment that these children were living out the very best time of their lives. To me the Friday night services were the highlight of the week. I thought it would have been the evening activities or some other "fun" event but I was really blown away by the Friday night services. I'm not saying the services themselves were something our Rabbi could learn from but the true feeling that everyone belonged to the same great big family really came through that evening. Sitting in the field house listening to the services being led by the campers and staff I truly felt like there were 400+ brothers and sisters sitting there. Again, it's very difficult to put these feelings into words and truly express the actual experience but I will never forget it and I'm so happy to have been part of it. In fact, on more than one Friday night I had tears in my eyes. Not in sadness but sheer joy for my own children, their immediate friends and all the other people, whether it be counselors, senior staff, younger campers or older campers that we have all met along this Camp Towanda Journey.

We all want the best for our children. We want them to study hard, get good grades, go to a good school and be successful and happy in life. But most importantly we want them to be good people, menches. We as parents can only say and do so much. We can lead by example and guide them in their decisions. I believe from the bottom of my heart that the single best decision my husband and I have made for our children was to send them to Camp Towanda. I have seen my children and their friends learn respect, sportsmanship, empathy, compassion and camaraderie. I have watched them grow and mature and always try to make the right decisions. I believe that they have become better people and citizens because of their camp experience, which more then any other influence will make them successful and happy in life.

I have seen my boys with their home friends and their camp friends outside of camp whether it be on a field, for a party or just a sleepover. The moment they see their Towanda friends an immediate smile like no other appears. The comfort and security they feel with their camp friends and their families is unbelievable. And I thank you for this.

BREAKOUT RECAP

CAN U DIG IT

Although it was special once again, I am not certain I can capture in writing what actually occurred, let alone describe how breakout unraveled this summer. I can tell you that life at Camp Towanda is a gift for all of us here.

That being said... So, it all started about 6 years ago when we began excavating for the indoor Gully Hockey arena. Some may recall we discovered a 6 foot femur bone, perhaps from a dinosaur or mammoth. We just weren't sure. The following summer, the then Inter Boys began a 2 year dig out at our blueberry farm, where they eventually found bones, claws and gigantic teeth, also presumed to be of raptor size. We sent all that to the NGS (that's the National Geographic Society). Over the following years there was slight talk of the bones every now and then, as well as an article in this paper from time to time.

This summer, many of those Inter Boys became counselors. When I received a technological enhancement notification from the NGS, they indicated that there were infrared detections in other locations, apparently on campus. Although a few weeks went by until we could get our act together and dig, these counselors, with their campers (Juniors, Inter, Nationals and Seniors) began digging.

Three holes dug by the teepee netted some small-fossilized rocks and charred petrified wood that didn't seem too exciting.

Then a week later, new coordinates directed us to the staff parking lot where we tore a 40 x 6 foot hole to no avail. Nothing. Nada, but a big scar on the lot. What was going on? Was this worth the damage? Did Mitch lose his marbles or were we really looking for something?

But then the NGS lab sent us in a different direction, complete with a precise iPhone app that Mitch downloaded. Now we were close to the Skyview Soccer field, just to the left of the Fire Council Ring.

We began to dig at 10:45 am Wednesday. The Junior boys started with shovels, then we brought in the little back hoe, then the big momma; we eventually opened up a 20 x 20 opening. The crowd got bigger, we had to put up security barriers so spectators wouldn't cause a cave in. We reached a level of charred petrified wood. Something about carbon dating was mentioned. Then some exposure of what seemed like an odd shaped and colored rock at about 5 feet deep. The soil turned to a sand layer. The big equipment was shut down; shovels brought back in. Then small trowels and wide paint brushes.

Then we began to use our hands. As the excavation continued we had to build levels in the dig pit. Then water oozed in and we needed buckets; we then dug with the back hoe a secondary drain pit (we got that idea from BP).

Staff helped shore up the eroding walls of the dig with plywood and muscle as shifts of shovelers rotated while I barehanded the delicate removal of the ground around what was taking shape; it seemed to be a bone; but it turned out that teeth were part of this discovery and apparently this was a huge jaw bone!

Word spread through camp and spectators lined up as an organized viewing area was controlled. Staff and campers alike gawked into the pit as I dug with only the strong and fit staff.

A ladder was added to our now archaeological dig. I asked for a large paint brush to clean away the dirt and we were then looking at the full length of the lower jaw emerging from the depths of Towanda. It was absolutely amazing.

The sun was glaring about 90 degrees throughout this day; and now it was almost dinner time. We had been in the pit about 6 hours. Mud, dirt, sweat. I felt like Indiana Jones.

Just before dinner we were able to successfully exhume the bottom jaw. It took 5 guys to lift and place the lower jaw, wrapped in a blanket, on the flatbed. We drove it to evening flagpole lineup for the rest of camp to see. Man, it was exciting and amazing.

Dripping in mud and sweat (and no tears), we ate dinner. The crew and I couldn't get back to the pit fast enough. We wanted to get to the rest before sundown (although we had the big night lights on standby, just in case they were needed).

We were lowered back into the muddy dig pit, now about 13 feet deep and filling with oozing mud. We had to cancel the evening's planned all camp campfire as the dig was too close to the fire ring. It didn't matter, the crowd was gathering again to get a sense of the excitement.

We slowly dug and brushed away the top part of what seemed to be a Tyrannosaurus Rex skull. Although we could only see a portion of this head at this point, it was exciting and unbelievable.

Now the crowd wanted in! The side walls were caving in, the back hoe was trying to drain that away while the counselors switched off shoveling with shovels and their hands. I stayed close to the mouth, clearing away the dirt and sand from underneath.

At about 7:50 pm we were able to loosen the fossil from its deep grave. As the head was heaved out of the pit the crowd gawked in unbelievable excitement as mud and sweat and water dripped from my excavation team. The crowd clapped in excitement as we proudly hoisted the heavy huge skull in the air.

The entire camp, including the kitchen and laundry and maintenance teams were witnessing this remarkable find.

Then from the 4 corners of Skyview (Gully Hockey, Amphitheater, Domino House and the Lagoon Hill); fog horns sounded and Pink Floyd's Is Anybody Out There blasted from the Field House speakers. Team banners emerged from the Lagoon Hill and the crowd quickly turned its complete attention from the discovery to the field house and simultaneously screamed and ran frantically like a huge mass of bees to the field house.

The excavation team carried the skull behind the stampede of excitement to the field house stage (still dripping in mud). The screams and shouts were so loud in the field house that no one could hear themselves! It was deafening.

The banners were at the front on stage. Bob, the Head Judgie, declared that this was actually it, OLYMPICS 2010 and the teams were THE RED T-REX and THE BLUE RAPTORS! Generals, Camper Captains and Lieutenants were announced and welcomed with hugs, tackles and screams! An honor for all.

Olympics had started! Thumbs up from all; but all still so confused as to how it could possibly time out; an incredible discovery and breakout! It couldn't be fake; how could we be digging for 6 years and we find this incredible piece of history under several feet of grass, soil, mud and sand!!

Who would possibly do that? How could one do that?

Well, let me tell you; after digging for all those hours with sand in every piece of me (I think the last grains of sand under my fingernails have finally just left me); it was worth it. The adrenaline, the intensity, the spirit, the excitement, the whole thing was just incredible.

In 2009 it came from outer space; 2010, it came from under the earth! It was fun and I imagine most won't ever forget it!

THEN THE ACTION.....

The first day of competition was great. A hot day, but very healthy sportsmanship and competition, ending with tug-o-war and just a 2 point difference.

It is so hard to describe how everyone gets into it; even the sting of the rope in your grip; that sting doesn't matter; you are part of the team and you get into it! The concentration and determination really shined through that first evening really reflecting what we were all working toward the entire summer.

For us at camp, it is a privilege to witness it all. Trust me when I tell you that I am only barely scratching on the surface in my ability to not only describe breakout, the 1st day's activities, but really all that goes on here on a day to day basis and as the summer crescendos into its final hours (am I using the word crescendo correctly here?!)

The rest of Olympics were magical; from all of the healthy competition to the great Rope Burning and Sing. I can tell you that living and growing here at Camp Towanda is special. Watching the kids learn about themselves, building on respect and gaining confidence is just part of it. Stephanie and I truly believe that this magic happens here, one of the last places where one does not hide behind a keyboard or a game or can rely on someone else to solve their problems. Camp is a gift and we are sorry you all can't be flies on the walls. You would be so proud.
